CREATE A POSTCARD

Suppose you have a cousin who lives far away, and you want to send her a postcard about your community. Most postcards have a picture on one side and facts on the other side. Draw or cut out a picture of your community for one side of your postcard. Write about the picture and about what makes your community special. Put the picture and words together to create your postcard.

RESEARCH A COMMUNITY

Work with a partner to create a poster about a community. The community can be in the United States or somewhere else in the world. As you review the information in this magazine, decide what your poster will show. Will you include pictures and facts about the community's history, geography, and resources? Do Internet research to find the information you need. Draw or cut out pictures and write captions that explain the community features you've chosen for your poster.
